Tower Hill Mines, Inc conducted hardrock exploration drilling on both upland and wetland areas in the vicinity of Money Knob near Livengood, Alaska.

New road and drill pad construction consisted of clearing vegetation, removing the upper soil layer, and bulldozing a level pad. Reclamation was conducted using an excavator and dozer. Reclamation of pads consisted of closing sumps and pulling bulldozed material back on to the drill pad leaving the surface in a rough condition contoured to blend with the surrounding terrain. Where possible, trees and vegetative material were spread over the disturbed areas to reduce visual impact, help prevent erosion, and aid in natural re-vegetation.

The State of Alaska thanks Tower Hill Mines, Inc for their responsible stewardship of Alaska's resources and for exceeding standard reclamation stipulations required by the State of Alaska. We congratulate Tower Hill Mines, Inc as a most deserving recipient of this award.
